Career

What is your current job/career path?

My current career path is to pursue a scholarship in the USA for four years, studying sport in preparation for becoming a physiotherapist, while also playing Division 1 or Division 2 football. My alternative plan is to become a physiotherapist in England after attending university and completing a further degree in sport.

How did you get to your choice of career?

I've known my career path from a young age, as I've played football since the age of five. The sport has always helped take me away from the stresses of everyday life, and it's something I've enjoyed while also being good at. My interest in physiotherapy developed this year when I needed to choose a subject to study alongside my sport. There are many pathways within sport, but I chose physiotherapy because learning about the body interests me the most.

What are your plans for your future in careers?

My plans are to pursue football and go as far as I possibly can, while also recognising that I may not be able to rely solely on playing football as a career. Because of this, I aim to gain a position as a physiotherapist, eventually building a long-term career in that field.
